Re: As an Iowa DHHS employee, do any personal sexual immoralities produce a serious bias in the performance of your official duties?

Dear NW Iowa Social Workers

In a 1989 private meeting held in Des Moines, the late (†2017) John Harvey told a group of Iowa homeschool leaders what was coming on the horizon for Iowa families. Harvey was formerly employed by the Des Moines Public School and founded the Iowa chapter of Victims of Child Abuse Laws (VOCAL), an advocacy organization that assisted parents falsely accused of child abuse. That summer, Harvey joined ranks with Iowa home-school leaders to lobby against a particularly bad bill, S.F. 149, that would mischaracterize homeschoolers as a Child in Need of Assistance (CINA), enabling the State to go after parents with a false "truancy" allegation. There was also an Iowa Supreme Court decision that opened the door for this action: the Barry Bear case. I was the patriarch of one Iowa homeschool family that joined the successful resistance movement.

Harvey also told these homeschool leaders that many, if not most, DHHS workers were either divorced, sexual miscreants, lesbians, and a fast-growing number of them were Satanists. He told them the day is coming when social services agents will be taking Christian children from their homes under spurious pretenses, placing them in foster care, starting to traffic them, and introducing them to something new to those families in 1987: transgenderism. Stunned silence accompanied a measure of disbelief at this forecast from nearly forty years ago. John was certainly a prescient man.

As most know, Harvey's forecast came to pass, with lots of media coverage nationwide on the social services and foster care system being at the center of child sex trafficking and the child abuse industry today. In November of 2007, then-Georgia State Senator Nancy Schaefer released her famous report, The Corrupt Business of Child Protective Services, where she spelled out the unlimited and abusive power of your industry in her state. She was found dead in her home 2 ½ years later in what appeared to be a murder/suicide. An acquaintance of mine attended her funeral. The deaths of those publicly opposing such Epstein-style evil are becoming so common that internet chatter now says such people were "suicided."

In 2024, a foul court in California 'legalized' the castration of Jeff Younger's son.

In recent days, CBS News reported that Anoka County, MN Assistant County Attorney Andrea Leigh Sampson has been charged with helping run a sex trafficking organization in Hennepin County, Minnesota. This is becoming more common among judges, lawyers, social workers, deputies, etc., nationwide. There are more national media reports, but now see my Iowa Hall of Shame below.

Judge Not Lest Ye Be Judged, Judges!

I was a good friend of the late (†1998) District Associate Judge Cameron Arnold (Cam) of Spirit Lake. He served for a term as the elected President of the Iowa Judges Association sometime back in the 1980s. Some months after his term expired, he resigned from the private association that elected him. He told me he did because "There is something ominous, something dark about judges. They truly do believe they are God on earth. The only hope is for the Church to be humbled and stirred up to hold the judiciary accountable, or this branch of government will destroy Christian civilization. It will never reform from within." He used the word satanic to describe them.

Cam told me he once granted primary custody of a baby to its mother in a disputed child custody case. His reasoning was that the father had been pushing the mother to abort the child, up until it was born. "Any father who wanted to murder his own child by abortion could not be trusted to properly care for the born child," he told me. He wrote his ruling in the early 1990s in such a way, hoping that the father's attorney would appeal and the state Appellate and/or Supreme Court would have to face Roe v. Wade head-on. Sadly, there was no appeal. Cam also prayed each morning in his chambers that God would show where to extend mercy and where to extend judgment in each case before him. Cam was a good man, worthy to judge.

The late (†2025) former Carroll County Attorney, John Werden, joined me and a half-dozen others as we picketed the swearing-in ceremony of former Planned Parenthood Spencer advisory board chair, attorney Nancy Whittenburg, as a District #3A Judge. John was convinced she was an unqualified feminist attorney with an ax to grind. We sang Psalm 82 to music (taken from the old Psalter Hymnal of the once-great Christian Reformed Church), in which corrupt judges are rebuked by God, and held a press conference, during which the Sioux City Journal (3/6/2004) cited Werden's view on Whittenburg. Werden was a good prosecutor, but Whittenburg should never have been on the bench, having served on an advisory board of the national pervert promoters.

As current District Judge Carl Peterson knows, he would not deny reports from some fellow lawyers that I asked him about - prior to his appointment to the District #3A bench years ago - that he was committing adultery with his babysitter and ended up divorcing his wife. The divorce was confirmed on Iowa Courts Online. Several lawyers told me in a rather 'oh hum' attitude that they knew he was "banging his children's babysitter," as one termed it. I never found out whether she was a minor. I was not the least bit surprised when Peterson recently granted probation to Alexis Ann Severson, the West Lyon girls' volleyball coach, guilty of lesbian seduction of a minor girl. And within a couple of days of her probation, Severson was arrested for breaking the No Contact order with the same girl. Anyone but 'babysitter banging' Peterson, who had intimate knowledge of the details of her case, could have seen this coming a mile off.

Years ago, District Judge Chuck Barlow of Spirit Lake was on the retention ballot in Judicial District #3A. When I confronted him with his adultery against the 'wife of his youth' who worked to put him through law school, he never denied it and babbled over the phone about how he thought he was a good judge, worthy of another term on the bench. Reports of his second wife were not honorable. I concluded our conversation by telling him that before God, he was not fit to sit in judgment over other couples' marriages and that he should resign the bench. Several months after he won re-election, Chuck resigned.

Years ago, I caught divorced District Judge Thomas Hamilton lying to the members of the District #3A Nominating Commission, which he was chairing, to facilitate reopening the applications for judicial nomination after the deadline had passed. During the new application window, Hamilton sent Barlow down to Spencer to recruit Patrick Carr, who later became the District Judge. Lawyers told me that too many God-fearing attorneys with intact families had applied, and Hamilton didn't like them. A few years later, the late (†2013) Francis Honrath, Esq. called me, distraught, to say that his client in a Lyon County custody case lost primary custody of his five-year-old daughter to his ex-wife. His ex-wife had admitted in court that she let their daughter sleep in the bedroom closet with the door open while she had sexual intercourse with her boyfriend(s). The District Judge who granted primary custody to the whore, according to the late Honrath, was none other than Patrick Carr.

A few years ago, I was compelled by the lie of Iowa Juvenile Court Officer Shawn Olsen's in the performance of his official duties to inquire about his past sex life. Olsen's deception was employed in a failed effort to legally trap a minor young man on a false sex charge aboard a local school bus, who at the time claimed repeatedly that he was a virgin. (I had strong reasons to believe he was a virgin.) I had to ask Olsen, of Estherville, if he was morally intimidated by this 17 yr. old virgin young man. The late Clyde Hoekstra, former foster parent in the Lakes area, asked me one day, "What did you do to Shawn Olsen? He's 'butt hurt'." Hoekstra explained that when one of his foster boys mentioned to Olsen that he enjoyed mowing my office lawn (for pay) and visiting with Paul Dorr, Olsen snapped, "You stay away from Paul Dorr." Clyde and I laughed when he saw my letter to Olsen and learned that I had filed a complaint with senior authorities in Des Moines against his lie.

In 1994, after District #3B Judge Jim Scott's nomination was sent to the governor, I asked him to give me an account of the divorce from his first wife. He refused. I later asked him to confirm or deny three independent reports from individual Rock Valley citizens (none being aware of the others) that he previously had a significant drug problem. He refused to deny it and filed a 'security risk' report regarding me with the Sioux County Sheriff. The late (†2018) Sheriff Jim Schwiesow called, laughing, and said, "Well, I haven't heard this before, but his overreaction tells me to keep an eye on him."

In 2018, Nick Mazurek posted on his social media account that he gets his humor from PornHub and he "Likes" the homosexual group OC (Orange City) Pride's Facebook page. He also publicly posted a joke with heavy innuendo that he's engaging in sexting with his wife, Magistrate Lisa Mazurek, when she's gone to legal conferences in Des Moines. Lisa, playing along with the sexual innuendo, said she had to read her husband's sexting posts in the bathroom. Lisa also practices law at the Miller, Miller, Miller Law Firm in Cherokee. Whitney Miller posted this public response about the 'sexting' between the two: "I will never look at the office bathroom the same again if I ever see Lisa leaving it on her phone." To the miscreant mind, Whitney, wife of District #3A Judge Adam Miller, strongly implied that Lisa was in the bathroom texting and masturbating herself.

It is no wonder that during my trial for burning the Orange City public library's transgender books across the street from the Orange City Drag Queen festival in October 2018, Magistrate Lisa Mazurek denied me the right to explain to a jury what was in the books and denied me the right to explain to the jury the historical Common Law right for them to rule on both the facts and the law. Sexual miscreants often cover for each other.

I later organized a lit-drop on every church parking lot on a Sunday morning in her judicial district about her personal immoralities and her covering for transgender books in Orange City. Our literature included the names and contact information of all the parties serving on the Nomination Commission and asked the public to call the commissioners and tell them to vote NO when Mazurek applies again for a District #3A seat on the bench. The last I heard, she had applied three times, with the third time having only a handful of applicants, and she had never been nominated. A "constitutionally noteworthy" ruling was required to be submitted to the Commission with her application each time. She chose the one where she found me guilty of burning transgender books. She was proud of it!

I also organized a picket of the Cherokee law office where Mazurek also works. We passed out the flier to many who walked by. The large sign read, "No More Sexual Deviants As Judges." Cherokee police drove past twice and waved at us, one smiling. The best part was some gray-haired man walked up, after reading our sign, and asked me, "Who is this about? Old man Miller?" I laughed and said, "I've never met the man and know nothing about him." I then explained to him about Mazurek. But it appears that Judge Adam Miller comes from a lousy heritage.

Judges rule by personal ideology, not by the plain meaning of the law.

A telling summary of judicial conduct was found in a bold motion to dismiss that Greene County, IA, Attorney Thomas Laehen filed on 12/2/19 with the Iowa Supreme Court in the case of Iowa v. David A. Holley. Laehen stated that "in State v. Ingram, 914 N. W.2d 794, 799 (Iowa 20 18), the Iowa Supreme Court arrogantly declared itself the ultimate arbiter of the meaning ... of the Iowa Constitution." Laehen is correct about their arrogance. It is the people who have the final say, as three Iowa Supreme Court judges learned in 2010 when removed from the bench by the voters. Further, Laehen wrote, "Indeed the scholarly literature has unequivocally demonstrated that a justice's personal ideological beliefs and attitudes, and not the plain meaning of the law, is the primary determinant of his or her voting behavior on the bench. See generally Jeffrey A. Segal & Harold J. Spaeth, The Supreme Court and the Attitudinal Model Revisited (2002)."

Clearly, the plain meaning of the law is thrown out by most judges, and I would now add, social workers. And their personal ideological beliefs, or in this case their personal sexual immoralities, have become the basis of many of their rulings to destroy young people and families.

I believed Jon Harvey back then and was prepared to go on the offensive if, and when, the local school district, social services, county attorney, and Sheriff's deputies came after my wife and me for homeschooling our eleven children, while in principled objection to Iowa's compulsory attendance laws. Per a complaint filed by the Sibley-Ocheyedan School District a few years later, the Dickinson County Attorney then filed charges against me for violating this law. So, I had to respond.

The fruit of my kind inquiries to the then-Dickinson County Attorney, Jon Martin, led him to resign from office, and his appointed replacement later dismissed all the charges against me. My inquiries of Martin included: "If you think you know what's best for my children, tell me about yours? And tell me about your marriage, your family, and your sex life? If all I receive is silence, Mr. Martin, I will assume you are hiding something. If you follow through with litigating these charges against me while remaining silent to my inquiries, I will launch my own investigation into your marriage and sex life."

Again, Martin resigned as Dickinson County Attorney a few months later. When I told the story to Judge Arnold, he roared with laughter, asking, "Did you know? Did you know?" I replied, "Know what?" "You did not know he had taken up with another woman, who was now sharing his bed while his children were still at home, and was divorcing his wife." I was stunned when I first learned this, and we both gave glory to God for His providential timing. Arnold told me he had called Martin into his chambers and chewed him out for committing adultery.

More recently, after several appeals to the Iowa Public Information Board over a public records case, the IPIB agreed with me, reversed itself, and ordered Osceola County to provide me the public record of the inventory of porn sites being viewed by then County Attorney Nolan McGowan using Osceola County's server. The then chairman of the Board of Supervisors told me McGowan was initially exposed by leaving a porn video running on the credenza in his office, in the presence of a woman alone there on business. This came about at the same time he was picked up for an OWI. McGowan has since left our county and is now the County Attorney for Lyon County.

District Associate Judge Dan Vakulskas, sitting on the bench in Sioux County, comes from the well-known Sioux City Vakulskas law family that has defended the Sioux City porn industry in court for decades. I wrote an essay years ago exposing his family's porn connection while "pointing" to his mother, who at the time was the Chair of the Woodbury County Republican Party. My flier was distributed to pastors and political leaders in Sioux City. Not too long after that, she was voted out of her office in the Republican Party.

Clearly, sexual miscreants and villains have had control of the so-called child abuse industry (including the courts) for decades.

The cost to society is becoming too much to bear. The part that the public is waking up to is the brutality done to the children separated from a parent and to married men by social workers and the courts, who functionally serve as a 'legal Billy club' against men whose selfish wives have decided to divorce them. The suicide rates of men trapped like a rat in the corner by your industry are exploding. Also, the morally meaningless propaganda terms your industry employees like abuse, toxic, best interests of the child, bipolar, harassment, etc. are starting to fall flat with overuse. Again, the public is starting to notice.

I recently finished a thorough scholarly book on your industry, titled The New Politics of Sex by Dr. Stephen Baskerville © 2017, where he wrote,

> Also like child support agents, child protection officials are recruited largely from the ranks of divorced women and from graduates of social work and "women's studies" programs where they are trained in feminist ideology that is hostile to parents and especially fathers. It appears that homosexuals are also entering the social work profession in large numbers." p. 201

History shows that the family court system was first set up in Cook County, Ill, by Jane Addams and her aristocratic, barren, lesbian friends, most of whom were originally from New England. The culture for this, according to Harvard-trained Dr. Ann Douglas in her book The Feminization of American Culture, was established by 30 popular women and some New England pastors as writers (mostly fiction) in the latter half of the 19th century. What was common to their fiction was that Christian (often Calvinist) fathers were loveless, joyless, and mean, and could only be "saved" by the tender love of their young daughters. The attack on patriarchy began with this literature. Interestingly, those 30 female authors bore a total of 40 children, averaging 1.33 per woman (well below the replacement level of 2.1). But four of them were rather prolific. Absent from this baby count, 26 of the remaining feminist authors had a total of 21 children, averaging 0.80 children per woman. The hatred of men and children began in earnest with them.

It spread through America, then Britain, across Europe, Africa, and Asia, and then around the globe. Today, the United Nations no longer works to advance global peace, but radical feminist hatred of men.

To cite Baskerville's book again, "UNICEF's politicization began with feminist-driven programs to "protect children not from specific health risks, but from ill-defined violence, exploitation, abuse, and discrimination." - In other words, from their own parents… Predictably, fathers have no role in UNICEF's understanding of children's well-being. "Fathers are mentioned as perpetrators of gender bias and discrimination, and therefore in need of re-education or re-socialization," writes Silva. "They are not mentioned as positive role models, as integral to the upbringing of healthy and well-

*adjusted children. "Consistent with the absence of any UN agencies to address the problem of men, "according to UNICEF, there is not one current infringement of fathers' rights or the rights of men that is worthy of being addressed."" p 254 & 256

Dr. E. Michael Jones calls this "barren" attitude of feminist women proliphobia, that is, fear and hatred of parents having more children than they are. So sexual miscreants who hate children flooded into the fields of law and social work to stop the reproduction of our Christian families.

More recently, Yale University graduate and former editor of the Washington Examiner, Helen Andrews, addresses the result of women taking over so many fields, in this case, law: "The field that frightens me most is the law. All of us depend on a functioning legal system, and, to be blunt, the rule of law will not survive the legal profession becoming majority-female. The rule of law is not just about writing rules down. It means following them even when they yield an outcome that tugs at your heartstrings or runs contrary to your gut sense of which party is more sympathetic." Women are destroying many such fields, as Andrews spells out.

Sexual miscreants with few or no children are dominating the fields of law and social work, but I sense the end of their power is looming, as the number of families destroyed by your industry is exploding in growth and, again, your throwaway lines, like in the best interest of the child, are not landing anymore. Especially as more of your peers are getting involved in sex trafficking.

Reading Baskerville's book brought back memories of the late John Harvey and made me realize I had overlooked asking DHHS employees similar, if not the same, questions I had asked judges and lawyers over the last 35 years. So, I am doing that now. But before I ask, let me introduce myself.

Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder. Matthew 19:6

My wife, Debra, and I were raised, as redeemed sinners, in intact Christian families. My parents were married for 54 years and her parents for 65 years. Between us, we had ten siblings. I entered a covenant of marriage with God and her (my high school sweetheart) in 1975, and we are now approaching our 51st Anniversary. We both have a body count (to use the modern-day parlance) of one: each other. After she won a National Newspaper Association 1st-Place Award in 1982, she knew she really wanted to be a "keeper of the home" and my "helpmeet," as the Bible says in Titus 2:5 and Genesis 2:18. She walked away from her rising journalism career. We have been blessed with eleven children (nine married) and forty-three grandchildren, so far. None of us have had any experience with the family courts, to my knowledge, to date. But we see this covenant lineage as the blessing God promises to those who love Christ and follow His Law, especially where it contradicts man's usurpations of His Law. Eph. 6:2-3, Prov. 3:1-2, Deut. 5:33, et al

I do candidly admit that our generation of Boomers and the Gen X generation, especially those in the pulpits, threw such covenantal lineages overboard, and never resisted the sexual revolution nor the family nightmare unleashed by Iowa's No-Fault Divorce law passed in 1970, nor the federal Mondale Act of 1974, which incentivized false child-abuse claims and put many of your predecessors to work "finding" false abuse claims to be true. The result is the reality that most of you (not all) now likely find yourselves to be sexual miscreants in your own right; likely barren or maybe the parent of a child or two (who you are likely at odds with); likely divorced; and burning with misandry.

Women who have their own trail of unrepentant sexual sin - with all its attending destructive consequences - are anything but fit for the task of seeking "the best interests of the child." Such DHHS civil servants need to hear the Gospel, turn to Jesus Christ as their savior, and repent of their own sexual perversions and their many family-destroying sins. But again, I strongly believe that the failed Christian Boomers and Gen X generations are more to blame than any, as they sat back while this was being done to your generation(s). Try as I may with my peers, their hearts are stone-cold hard, so I pray for them, but I must now move on to your generation's sins of commission.

But I'm not assuming such of you personally, without giving you an opportunity to respond. As state records here in NW Iowa show, about 80% of DHHS social workers are female; I'm going to assume most of you receiving this are female.

Questions regarding personal sexual morality of Iowa DHHS employees

I ask the following questions to establish where you stand before the living God as you serve the state taxpayers in an agency well-known, on average, to be destroying families and likely trafficking little children in the state foster care system. If you were not a state employee involved in marriages and family issues, this would be none of my business. But you are. So let me ask.

1. How were you raised? In the Christian faith or as a secular unbeliever? Atheist? Satanist?
2. Did you have married parents through adulthood, or did your parents divorce when you were still at home? If divorced, did you have one parent take advantage of our misandrist family court system? Were you raised, in essence, by a single mother? Or father?
3. If so, were you taught to hate one of your parents in this divorce situation? If so, which parent?
4. Did you enjoy the love and care of a father growing up, or were you denied this love?
5. Growing up, did you remain a virgin until married? If you did not, what was your body count before marriage? Does your spouse know your past body count?
6. If you are still single and you are not a virgin, what is your body count as of today?
7. Have you murdered any child(ren) by an abortion(s)?
8. If you have a high body count, do Christian parents with virgin children intimidate you? Or are you jealous of them? Do you hate them in reverse proportion to your guilty conscience?
9. Are you married? If so, to someone of the opposite sex?
10. If married, do you have any children? If so, have you been raising them in the fear and admonition of the Lord Jesus Christ?
11. If married, have you been sexually faithful to your spouse? If not, does he/she know you have committed adultery?
12. Did you take any "women's studies" courses in college? Were you influenced by feminist teachers/professors in high school or college?
13. If you are a social worker with authority to determine if alleged spouse abuse or child abuse has occurred, tell me about your training? What markers, qualifiers, evidence, and criteria were you trained to look for to determine if such allegations are "founded" or not? Do you have a state-issued training manual(s) I could review?
14. If you were raised in a sinful home, have a sordid sexual lifestyle of your own, are a poor parent of your own children, or have not been faithful to your spouse, does this impact the way you perform your official duties? Does it impact the way you see men?
15. Are you homosexual?
16. Have you personally ever engaged in pedophilic sexual relations?
17. Have you ever ruled as "unfounded" regarding the accusation of pedophilia contrary to major evidence to the contrary? If so, why?

I would be glad to meet with any of you who have not repented to God long ago and may be convicted of their sins after reading this. The Gospel is real. Even the sinner on the cross was saved by Christ, moments before he took his last breath. (Luke 23: 39-43) Feel free to reach out if you desire.

If you are steadfast in any sexual sins and are letting them affect your employment duties, let me tell you what I've told judges over the years: please help reduce the harm being done to NW Iowa families and resign from your office. I'll await your answers to my questions above.

Sincerely,

Christos Kurios,
Paul R. Dorr
